Other Events from all Farts of Georgia-Crime and Accident in Dahlonegs-A Coatest in Court-John Bradwell Surrenders-Deaths in Georgia-Short News Notes-Etc,

COLUMBUS, April 11 .- [Special.] - Few people perhaps, know that with the exception of a short absence of two or three days, Blind Tom, the musical prodisy, has spent the last four or five instance of Hon. L. F. Garrard, counsel for General Bethune, in order to test the right of the wo who claims to be the widow of the late John Bethune to the management of Tom. visited Tom's mother and at tempted to persuade the old woman to give he control of him. She succeeded in inducing the old weman to travel with her, and they are now etsent from Columbus. It is thought that her object is to lay quietly at some place outside of Georg'a, and when Tom comes within her reach, n she his mother demand possession and control

In this, however, she will be thwarted if she at tempis it, as Tom now has a lawful guardian. At the term of the ordinary's court this week he was tried for luracy and found to be an idlot, and General Bethune was appointed his guardian. This was probably an unexpected move to the retended widow, and what steps she will next take is not known. Tom will give three concerts here next week for the benefit of the public library. He is as much a wonder now as eve COLUMBUS, Ga., April 11 .- [Special.] - The work of extending the engine house of Young America No 5 has been commenced. It will be extended

There seems to be only one thing now lacking to make the building of the Georgia Midland and Gulf railroad a certainty. This one thing is a concert of action between Columbus and Atlanta. The directors of the company give assurances tha they have made arrangements that insure the building of the road, whenever the people interested will raise $150,000. This road would be of great benefit to both cities, and the busines men of Atlanta should co-operate with those of Columbus and see that it is built.

A CONTEST IN COURT. A Milton County Election Contest Which

Has Grown Quite Interesting. MARIETTA, Ga., April 11.—[Special.]—Hon. Will J. Winn and Colonel Enoch Faw, of this city, have returned from Milton court, where they went to Brown. The facts of the case are about as follows: Last January, in the county election, Mr. W. H Nesbit was re-elected ordinary by a majority of one vote over Mr. Morris. The latter gentleman took steps to contest the Lewis to bring a writ of quo warranto, alleging therein that two votes had been cast for Mr. Nes bit as clerk, and were counted in for him as ordipary. The writ also alleged that a number of other illegal votes had been cast. Mr. Nesbit re plied to this by admitting that some illegal votes had been cast, but the majority he contended were cast for his opponent. Mr. Morris then amended his writ by striking out the clause rela nicality in making out the returns alleging that larities in the management of the election Messrs. Winn, Faw and Todge as counsel for de fendant then demurred to the writ on the ground that the irregularities spoken of were not sufficient to render the election void. After counsel argued on this point all day, Judge Brown sustained the demurrer and ruled the case out of court. It will probably be appealed.

John Bradwell Surrenders DARIEN, Ga., April 11.-[Special ]-Mr. John Bradwell, keeper of the light on Wolf island, and for whose arrest the sheriff has held a warrant for some time, has surrendered to the authorit sarrant charged him with assault with intent to kill. Mr. Bradwell waived a hearing and gave bond for his appearance at the next term of the court. Consternation Over an Appointment.

Sandensville, April 11.—[Special.]—Great consternation was created here to-day among the applicants for the deputy collectorship of internal revenue for the district in which Washington is located, by the announcement that a letter had been received by a prominent gentlemn hete from Mr. Thomas Crenshaw, in which the statement was made that he (Crenshaw) had made all his appointments, and that Mr. McKinnon, of Savannah would be transplanted.

Camilla Clarion: One week from to-day Moss Keaton and Peter Johnson will pay the penalty of murder. The gallows has been erected under the direction of our faithful sherift, Mr. G. W. Swindle, who will do his whole duty in this awfully serious business. He says that he will have the hang the doomsed men on the public square, as me one will allow the gallows to be erected on private land within the legal distance from to wa. This is unfortunate, for many find already the sight of the gallows a hideous object, and will be compelled to see it for several days, whether they want to or not. As usual, hundreds will reme from far and near to witness the ghastly tragedy. The objection which is urged against allowing the use of private land is that negroes in their superstition will regard the land haunted by Keaton's and Johnson's ghosts, and will refuse to work on it. Many of them don't came to work on land that is haunted, Maybe with the ghosts hovering around the public square in Camilla, hereafter so many of them will not flock to town every Saurday. We hereby give notice to all loaders white and black, that Camilla will be haunted on Saturdays. The ghost will not be here on the other cars of the week.

A fire broke out near Longbride last week burned a good deal of fencing and created quite an excitement in the community. The woods have not been burned in the last decade and there is a lot of dry timber in the track of two or three cyclones, and if, when the wind is high, fire should break out it would endanger the property of nearly the whole neighborhood.

There was a general this delivery in Leesburg on Wednesday night. Several negro prisoners were confined in the upper story of the jall, one under sentence of death for a nameless critic another under sentence of four years for manslaughter and several others for minor offenses. By using a railroad spike they dug through the wall, and let themselves down to the ground with a rope made of strips of blankets. They carried off the jailer's shoes and pistol as trophies.

The whole county should turn out to do this, and if caught there is no punishment severe enough for him. If this one rapirt is allowed to go without immediate and the most severe punishment there is no telling how soon there may be a repetition of the crime. It is not pleasant to us to becord such a deed as this, and we would not, but that the entire county may bear of the facts and that there may be a united effort to capture the perpetrator. The lady and her husband are among our most respected people and the entire community sympathize with them and relatives in their removes, and will join them in their efforts to capture and deal out to the secondrel the severest of punishment. We believe in respecting the laws of the land, but in this instance it would be a pleasant sight to us to see a boufire made of this negro who has so dastardly broken them.

Cylethorpe Echo: Such crimes as the one we enumerate were numerous a few years back, but thanks to Judge Lynch and the stake, they have been considerably checked. ### CONTEST IN COURT A Milton County Election Contest Which

Has Grown Quite Interesting.

MARIETTA, Ga., April II.—[Special.]—Hon. Will J.
Winn and Colonel Enoch Faw, of this city, have argue an important election case before Judge Brown. The facts of the case are about as follows: Last January, in the county election, Mr. W. H. Nesbit was re-elected ordinary by a majority of one vote over Mr. Morris. The latter gentleman at once took steps to contest the election and employed Colonel Tom Lewis to bring a writ of quo warranto, alleging therein that two votes had been cast for Mr. Nes bit as clerk, and were counted in for him as ordinary. The writ also alleged, that a number of other illegal votes had been cast. Mr. Neshit re-plied to this by admitting that some illegal votes had been cast, but the majority he contended were cast for his opponent. Mr. Morris then amended his writ by striking out the clause rela nicality in making out the returns alleging that the election was void because of certain irregu-larities in the management of the election. Messrs. Winn, Faw and Todge as counsel for defendant then demurred to the writ on the ground that the irregularities spoken of were not sufficient to render the election void. After counsel argued on this point all day, Judge Brown sustained the demurrer and ruled the case out of court. It will probably be appealed.

John Bradwell Surrenders DARIEN, Ga., April 11.—[Special ]—Mr. John Bradwell, keeper of the light on Wolf island, and for whose arrest the sheriff has held a warrant for some time, has surrendered to the authorities. The warrant charged him with assault with intent to kill. Mr. Bradwell waived a hearing and gave bond for his appearance at the next term of the court. It is said that the party swearing out the warrent is anxious to settle, but that Mr. Bradwell declines, stoutly maintaining that he had a legal right to do just what he did do.

Consternation Over an Appointment, Sandemanner, April 11.—[Special.]—Great consternation was created here to-day among the applicants for the deputy collectorship of internal revenue for the district in which Washington is located, by the announcement that a letter had been received by a prominent gentleman here from Mr. Thomas Creukhaw, in which the statement was made that he (Crenhaw) had made all his appointments, and that Mr. McKinnon, of Savannah would be transplanted.

The Cedartown Advertiser, in correcting the re port of a murder in Rockmart, says: "The repor nucorrected is an unjust reflection upon the community of Rockmart." The question which here arises is how can the report of a murder, which incidentally might or might not have occurred, be a reflection upon those who had nothing to do with it? Why should one man feel slighted because some one else did something wrong? If a hundred murders took place in Rockmart, i would not be a reflection upon the people of that place, but rather a reflection upon the crimin only. There is nothing gained by combining the cause of a criminal with that of a community.

Camilla Clarion: One week from to-day Mose Keaton and Peter Johnson will pay the penalty of murder. The gallows has been erected under the direction of our faithful sherift, Mr. G. W. Swindle, who will do his whole duty in this awfully serious business. He says that he will have to hang the doomed men on the public square, as no one will allow the gallows to be erected on private land within the legal distance from to #a. This is unfortunate, for many find already the right of the gallows a hideous object, and will be compelled to see it for several days, whether they want to or not. As usual, hundreds will rome from far and near to witness the ghastly tregedy. The objection which is urged against allowing the use of private land is that negroes in their superstition will regard the land haunted by Keaton's and Johnson's ghosts, and will refuse to work on it. Many of them don't case to work on land that is haunted. Maybe with the ghosts hovering around the public quame in Camilla, hereafter so meny of them will not flock to town every Saturday. We hereby give notice to all loaders white and black, that Camilla will be haunted on Saturdays. The ghost will not be here on the other days of the week.

Oglethorpe Echo: Such crimes as the one we enumerate were numerous a few years back, but thanks to Judge Lynch and the stake, they have been considerably checked. Oglethorpe county has heretoforeescaped the disgrace until Tuesday last, when we were shocked to hear that a olack fearted negro had assaulted and accomplished the purpose of his demon passion upon Mrs. Too Graham, a lady livingin the chapel neighborhood, about four miles from Lexington. Mrs. Graham says the had been to the spring, which is some distance from the house, and while she was returning with two buckets of water, and as she was passing a clump of bushes the negro jumped out be hind her, caught hold of her and threw her violently to the ground. Before she could call for help she became so frightened as to make her enseless, when she was dragged to a seculded place in the underbrush near by and subjected to nameless treatment. When Mrs. G-aham regained her consciousness the negro had gone, and she now doubts that she would know him if saw were to see him, bu says he was of a light colar and had on a light-colored stouch hat. It was some time before she regained strength enough to summons anyone to her aid, which gave the demon time to get so far away as to make all scarch for him firtiless and as syet he is at large, but it is hoped that he will be captured. ISSIA MUST WITHDRAW FROM

Czar Replice by Saying That his Soldiers May nce, bu: Never Retreat-Fear of Rebel-n Among the Indians-War Almost a Certainty-Other PPreign News.

LONDON, April 11 .- The war office is over ed with offers of service sent in by my, militia and volunteer officers. The uiting depots in London and in the provinces are daily beseiged by men anxious to enter the military service, in view of the prospect of war with Russia. All admirals of the British navy have been notified to hold themelves in readiness for active service. A special sinuction has been sent by the admiralty to Vice Admiral Lord John Hay, commanding the British squadron in the Mediterranean to sold himself and his fleet ready for service.

A very determined and grave position has been assumed by the English government toward Russia concerning the Penjdeh incident. The ministry, it appears, have been ecerced by the aggressiveness of public opinion into a tardy but evidently determined attitude of pugnacity. At first Gladstone satisfied himself with demanding of Russia an explanation of General Komaroff's attack spon the Afghans. He felt sure, it is stated, that Russia was sincerely desirous of peace, and would discountenance the action of the nmander, no matter how thoroughly he might have represented the bellicose policy of the St. Petersburg war party. But when the czar answered that he would explain to England as soon as Komaroff explained to him, the premier was forced to con-clude that the czar was trifling to gain time. To-day, therefore, Earl Granville, British for-clude that the czar was trifling to gain time. To-day, therefore, Earl Granville, British foreign minister, advised Barpon DeStaal, Russian ambessador to London, that the British government had decided that whatever the nature of the Russian explanation of Komaroff's action might be, Great Britain would not allow any further discussion concerning the determination of the Afghan frontier to go on until the Russian troops have been withdrawn from their present outposts in the disputed territory, back to the positions which they occupied at the time England appointed her part of the commission to adjust the Afghan lines.

As this was nearly a year ago it is difficult to believe that Russia will seriously attempt to reach an amicable understanding. Count Von Munster, the German embassador to London, is given as authority for most significant ulterances on the part of the British ministers. The German minister states that at a conference upon the Afghan situation held vesterday, Earl Granville declared that England had resolved that it was impossible to consent to a continuance of diplomatic discussion with Russia unless England was guaranteed security against having the results of the controversy imperiiled by a collision on the disputed frontier, such as had occurred in Rushk. England, lord Granville said, must refuse to accept, Russia's assurance that she desires peace unless the assurance that she desires peace unless the assurance was accompanied by a withdrawal of the troops to the line drawn from Tepi to Sari Yazi.

At the German and Russian embassies here, opinion is expressed that the dispute between the czar and Great Britain has actually reached its final phase in diplomacy. DeGiers, Russian prime minister, through Baron de Stral, has offered to abandon the Russian proposal to extend the line of debatable zone proposed by untains and recur to Lessar line. This is on the part of the Russofter on the part of the Russian premier while apparently containing, a concession is considered to be ready a ruse to modify the effects of General Komaroff's attack and to gain time. The Lossar line, while within the Parapamissono line, would hardly be acceptable to the English statesmen, although the proposal could be made to appear to the British public as a retreat on the part of Russia. As Earl Granville's demand for a withdrawal of the Russion troops was telegraphed to Bir Edward Thoraton at St Petersburg, after a receipt of Gier's proposal, it is inferred that the Russian premier's overture has not met with acceptance and has made no impression upon the English government.

Both Russia and England are busily engaged in correspondence with other powers and are actively forming alliances. If English negotiation with Turkey succeed, the most important immediate result will be the opening of the Dardanelles to the British fleet.

Two men of war belonging to the channel

ceening of the Dardanelles to the British fleet.

Two men of war belonging to the channel squadron now at Kingstown, Ireland, havebeen ordered to Portsmouth to take torpedoes on board. It is reported that they will then proceed immediately to the Baltic. Advices from Odessa state that there is great military activity in that city. Battalions of Cossacks are reviewed every day. The garrison at Kertsch is engaged night and day in hastening the completion of the works at that point, and the flouring mills are worked at their full especity in preparation of provisions.

The Times says that subsequent developments have not lessened the gravity of the situation, and that the country would not be estified with DeGier's reply, which commits Russia to no condemnation of Nomaroff's action, but provides for a delay when days and hours are of vital consequence, and leaves Komaroff at liberty to frame such excuses as will most likely affect European opinion. It my that it is impossible to doubt that Komaroff's act had much larger aims than an election of Afghans from an important position.

RUSSIA CENSURES ENGLAND.

St. Petersburg, April 11.—The Journal de St. Petersburg, April 11.—The Journal de St. Petersburg, speaking evidently by official inspirations, comments upon recent government utterances in the British parliament upon the Penjdeh incident as premature. It says that it thinks it would have been preferrable for the English ministers to have suspended judgment until the receipt of more complete information. They should have acted on the supposition that it was unlikely that Engain generals acted without good acted on the supposition that it was univery that Russian generals acted without good reason. They should have borne in mind that collisions such as that which occurred on Kushk, were always possible in the pres-ence of a violent and undisciplined Asiatic population. The Penjdeh incident, it concludes, was certainly an untoward event, because it may adversely affect negotiations pending between Russia and England, which still justify the hope for peace.

THE CZAR ENTHUSIASTICALLY GREETED.

The war feeling here is overwhelmingly strong. The czar appeared at the theater last evening. The audience, still euthusiastic over the news from Penjdeh, on the general assumption that Komaroff's conduct had imperial approval, arose when they saw him and shook the building with an ovation of applause.

They hint broadly that something explosive is going to happen to the hated prince before he gets out of Ireland, and when Rossa himself was bluntly asked if an assassination had been planned, his intense reserve might readily have been construed by a cynic as indicating that he desired the questioner to take silence for an affirmative. The alleged dynamiter sat at a mean desk on a shaky chair in his dingy office. The tiny hole through which Miss Dudley's bullet passed into his back remained unmended in his almost threadbare coat, and his toilet was disarranged, if it had earlier in the morning been attended to at all. Spread out before him was a map of Ireland, on which his forefinger rested at a point just to the southward of Dublin Whether it had been by chance arrested there when your correspondent intruded, or was pointed at a spot where disaster is to overtake the prince, could only be guessed. In the center of one room stands a hobby horse, as big as life, covered with a real equine skin, and supported in such a way on springs as to rise and fall like a galloper in motion. The sides of the apart-ment are mirrors. This is the depart-ment for riding habits. The woman who seeks a new costume for equestrianism is asked to select several models, and these she may test as to effect by donning them, taking seat on the back of the imitation steed, and contemplating herself in the mirrors while in the saddle. In case she doesn't care to mount the hobbyhorse herself, one of the imported girls corresponding most nearly to her size and shape performs the feat.

J. F. MOORE ALMOST DEAD FROM A DOSE OF MORPHINE.

Found in Grant's Park, where he Laid for a Day Inder Influence of the Drug-Wanting Die-Other News Notes About the City,

"Oh, let me die," said J. F. Moore to the physicians who were applying the battery to m yesterday.

Moore is a young white man about twentyfive years of age. He has been in Atlanta about one month, and for the past two weeks was working for a woodyard on Wheat street. On Friday, however, he quit work about noon, and that night failed to go to his boarding

Yesterday about noon some ladies who were walking through the Grant park came upon a young man lying in a grove asleep. The ladies reported the matter to a watchman who at once sought the spot. There he found the young man and attempted to arouse him, but soon found that he could not do so. He then discovered that the man was under the and under the man was under the influence of a powerful dose of morphine, and at once notified police headquarters. Dr. Duncan responded, and when he reached the park found the young man in a critical condition. No one knew him, and nothing was found in his pockets but a razor. A carriage was procurred and the man was taken to the lyyeract heavited these events effort was made to street hospital, where every effort was made t

Late in the afternoon a gentleman named Moore, who resides near the Fulton spinning mills, visited the hospital and recognized the man as his brother. He then said that his brother had not been seen by any of his friends since Friday at noon. He friends since Friday at noon. He also stated that his brother had attempted to kill himself once before. From what can be ascertained it is believed that Moore bought the morphine Friday, and went to the park that afternoon and swallowed some of it. He was seen in the pask late Friday evening. The doctors, however, assert that he swallowed the morphine in the pask that afternoon and swallowed the morphism of the swallowed the swallowed the morphism of the swallowed the swal

Moore came from Gwinnett county. He went from that county to Florida, a few years ago, and started a truck farm. This venture failed him, and a month ago he came back to Atlanta. Last night the physicians thought his case a hopeless one. He was breathing five times to the minute, and was in a critical condition. Once, early in the night, the physicians arroused him, when he asked them to leave him alone, saying that he wanted to die.

Bowen's arrest day before yesterday was a surprise to all who knew him, as he has always been considered an honest, hard working boy. His brother, Lewis Bowen, was badly put out by the charge of larceny, and when the accused was released yesterday they started out to see Pritchard. Lewis Bowen declared that he would make Pritchard show the entire affair Pritchard. Lewis Bowen declared that he would make Pritchard show the entire affair up in its right light, and carried his brother William along to point out Pritchard. After some hunting the Bowen brothers encountered William Prilchard, the brother to the man for whom they were looking. William Bowen in stantly declared that he was the man. The n a second Lewis Bowen and William Pritch are were engaged in a desperate fight. Pritchard did not know what the assault meant, but defended himself as best he could. Bowen did not know that he had tackled the wrong man until the fight was over. The Bewens were arrested, but gave bond.

THE SOUTHERN'S RECEIVER.

Judge Pardee Issues An Order Confirming the Bond of the Receiver---Bond Given. Yesterday in the United States circuit court Judge Pardee issued an order which disposes of the Southern telegraph company case, for the present at least. It will be remembered that Judge O. A. Lochrane some months ago filed a bill for a receiver of the company. An auxillary bill was filed in the United States circuit court in Virginia, by Senator William Mahone. The two bills were consolidated and under them A. I. Souleways of Virginia and Mahone. The two bills were consolidated and under them A. L. Boulevrae, of Virginia, appointed receiver. Yesterday the case came up before Judge Pardee in its consolidated from of Wm. Mahone for use, etc. vs. the Southern telegraph company and O. A. Lochrane vs. Southern telegraph company. The former plaintiffs were represented by John S. Wise and W. H. Shepherd, of Virginia, and Henry B. Tompkins, of Atlants. Lochrane & Van Epps appeared for O. A. Lochrane. The only points at issue were the representation of the creditors in the jurisdiction of this court as well as those in the jurisdiction of this court as well as those in the jurisdiction of this court as well as those in the jurisdicrepresentation of the creditors in the jurisdiction of this court as well as those in the jurisdiction of the Virginia court by the receiver and the filing of a bond in this court to secure that end. Judge Lochrane made these points when Mr. Boulevrae was appointed receiver in the Virginia court. Judge Lochrane also asked that a ruling be made to prevent Boulevrae from making any traffic arrangements without the consent of this court. The case was not argued on its merits as coursel had was not argued on its merits as counsel had about agreed on the points of difference before it was taken up yesterday. Judge Pardee delivered his order requiring bond from the receiver in the sum of $50,000. He intimated that it was not necessary to rule that the re-ceiver could make no traffic arrangement without consent of this circuit court as the receiver would be obliged to obtain such consent.

The decision of Judge Pardee seemed to give satisfaction to all parties concerned. Yesferday afternoon Mr. Boulerey, who is in the city, filed his bond for $50,000, and it was confirmed. This leaves him in charge of the affairs of the Southern telegraph company, with the restrictions alluded to. The company did not appear by counsel yesterday, as it was not resisting the proceedings. The Nuptial Tie.

Into a Negro Girl,

"She slapped my face and I cut her with my knife," said Ed Pratt, as his nose and eyes appeared through the bars of a cell in the city prison last night.

Ed Pratt is not yet nine years of age, and is extremely small for his years. He is a white boy, and yesterday gave himself a notoriety which will cling to him for a long time.

About eleven o'clock yesterday morning, Fratt was walking up Broad street with one of his brothers. When they were near Poplar street they met a small negro girl, apparently a few years older than Ed Pratt. The boy and girl had never seen one another before, and their first meeting was a fatal one for both. Just as the Pratt brothers met the girl, the younger brother stepped behind so as to let the girl pass. The elder brother paid no attention to this and walked on without looking back. In passing, however, the eider brother paid no attention to this and walked on without looking back. In passing, however, the NEGEO GIEL RAN AGAINST THE BOY Or the boy ran against the girl and a souffle ensued. The girl was stronger than the boy and found but little trouble in knocking him about at will. The fight had progressed two or three minutes when the boy suddenly ran his hand into his breeches pocket and in an instant jerked it out sgain. When the hand came out a bright blade was in it, and in an instant the blade had been buried twice in the girl's left side and shoulder. When the girl saw that Fratt intended to cut her she began yelling loudly for help, but Pratt's anger was thoroughly aroused and would probably have cut the girl to pieces had not several spectators stopped him.

The girl bled profusely and quickly sank back against the Powell building. The alarm was given and Patrolman Moncrief responded. He found Ed Pratt standing on the curbstone looking at the girl quite coolly. He made no objection to accom-

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC.

It Still Continues to Cure when the Best Medical Skill of New York, Philadelphia, and Other Cities Fail.

The Testimony of Mr. J. E Sherman, of Mobile, Alabama.

The Inflammation of the Veins.

POISON OAK.

In 1878 I was poisoned by contact with poison oak. My face and neck swelled terribly, and the itching and burning sensation was almost unbearable. I was then living at Manville, though in business in Mobile, and one of the colored women on the place told me what was the matter, and prescribed some simple remedy which done no good. I then tried homeopathy with varying success for three months, but with no permanent results. I then went under treatment of one of the prominent alopathic physicians for months with no better results. Then I went to New York and secured the services of one of the most distinguish ed physicians there, who done everything in his power, but failed to give relief. I then went to Philadelphia and went under the care of the celebrated Dr. Agnew for many weeks, and derived no appreciable benefit. Disheartened I returned home, and soon after went to Healing Springs Ala., where I remained three months, and was so much relieved that I concluded I was cured. I returned home and the disease renewed itself the pext day. After a few more weeks of misery I went to Hot Springs, Ark., where I remained for three months, and was so much im. proved that I once more believed myself to have been healed. I returned home only to have the poison to attack me more violently. My face was so swollen and mishapen that old and intimate friends did net recognize me. I have sat in a rocking-chair for three days and nights-my eyes closed and a poultice over my face, which felt as if it was one raw sore sprinkled with salt, vinegar and red pepper. In 1881 I leased Blount Springs, Ala., more for the purpose of my own cure than for any other reason. I had sulphur vapor baths fitted up and derived so much benefit therefrom that I again believed myself cured. I gave ur Blount Springs and returned to Mobile, when I

In 1884, in October, when, in desperation and having very little faith in it, I commenced using Swift's Specific. After I had taken a number, of bottles I felt that my digestion and my general health was improved, but so far as I could tell the poison was still in my system. After I had finished the second dozen bottles I began to realize a change for the better. Nearly every sign of my dread affliction had disappeared; my skin was clear and in its normall condition, and I sgain believed that I was forever free from it. On the 16th of last February I went to the woods to gather evergreens for decoration purposes. In some way I again run across my. old enemy, and the next day I was all swollen up with another attack of poison oak. I lost no time in getting S. S. & sgain. I harried it up, taking even four table spoonful for a dose, and continued it steadily through, but not in such heavy doses. I have now used several dozen bottles, and feel free again. The last faint signs of the terrible blood poisoning are now rapidly disappearing.

My wife has been suffering for seven long years with what the physicians called inflammation of the veins. I tried doctors time and again, but without deriving any benefit whatever.

At the suggestion of my druggist, J. C. Hightower, I was induced to try Swift's Specific, which in an incredible short time restored her to perfect health. I might say a great deal more ab every house. It is a cheap doctor; having saved me hundreds of dollars.

A TOWN THAT REMINDS HIM OF HIS GEORGIA HOME.

Some Wonderful Bulphur Springs-Mills Run by Bulphur Water-The Beauty of Texas Towns and the Lack of Home Beauty in the Country-A Fighting Parson, Etc.

LAMPASAS, Texas, April 8 .- This beautiful town among the hills-I can almost imagine I am at home in north Georgia or Tennessee, and can see the Alleganys away off in the horizon. There are no peaks here or precipices, but the elevations are roundly rolling and slope up gently and one can drive to their tops anywhere, and these Texas ponies never break their tireless trot. This town is in the crescent lap of a range of these gently sloping hills and the sulphur fork of the Lampasas river flows in a winding way right through it. It is a rockbuilt town. Everything is built of a beuutiful white limestone that is quarried here, and more abundant and more desirable than brick. The new court-house is a handsome structure and cost thirty-five thousand dollars and looks like it must have cost much, more. Everything here is on a rock basis. For a town 4,000 inhabitants and only four years old, it is a wonder of substantial growth. A street rail a wonder of substantial growth. A street rairroad and two icefactories are here. Here you are just over the border of Texas mud and can walk anywhere with comfort, whether wet or dry. If I was a rich man I would like to live in Lampasas. It may be because I love the hills better than the plains. There are good farming lands all round here along the rivers and creeks and down in the valleys, but there is many a brask between that a but there is many a break between that a Texas farmer would not like. Then there is health here. Pure air and pure water and more than that, for here are the sulphur springs that are already becoming famous, and that will some day make this place the Saratoga of Texas. I have seen sulphur springs before, but never any to compare with these. Their volume of water is these. Their volume of water is amazing. Either of the two largest ones afford enough water to turn a mill, and on one of the streams there are mills right in the town—mills run there are mills right in the town—mills rin by sulphur water so strong and so odorous that you can smell it a hundred yards away. You get a whiff of it as soon as you land at the depot, and before anyone has told you you exclaim, "I smell sulphur." One of the pools is 75 feet in diameter and is six feet deep and escapes through the bath houses and awimming pools, conting and bath houses and swimming pools, coating and galvanizing everything as it goes. The pool has a beautiful miniature forest growing in it, a plant that feeds and lives on sulphur and never gets above the surface, for if it does it dies. It will not grow in pure water or feed upon the sir. A beautiful building of solid white stone masonry encloses one of the springs and is provided with splended bathing rooms. A magnificent hotel is near at hand, one that cost ninety thousand dollars, and there are handsome cottages near by that are rented to summer visitors. The park is adorned with live oaks and pecan trees, and adorned with live cake and pecan trees, and contains 75 acres of ground.

I don't know personally whether sulphur water is good for the ills that flesh is heir to or not, but I have been drinking it freely with a hope that, even if I am not sick, it may rejuvenate my youth and make me want to live longer and prance around, as Joe Harris says. These good people here tell of marvellous cures, and they believe what they say, I know, or everybody drinks this water and seem to like it, though it is almost as nauseous to me as a dose of salts. On Sunday eve I counted forly-seven persons at one spring, each of whom had a jug or a bottle or a pitcher and had come for water. It is the common rendezyous of the town—the plazza, the Central park.

Lampassa is a town of exceptional moral character; but few saloons and no variety shows, and no saloons or stores kept open on Sunday.

The Rev. R. H. Burnett rode me all around. and I saw many lovely cottage houses upon the hills. I am still most forcibly struck with the beauty of Texas towns and the lack with the beauty of Texas towns and the lack of home beauty in the country. Now, in our good old state a traveler overland from town to town can find a cheerful homestead every mile or two—a place where he could say, "Let us atop here and stay overnight." Not so in Texas. The country homes are dark and dingy huts—most generally a front room and a shed, with a stove-pipe sticking out—no barns, no stables—no shade trees, no fence or palings to enclose the yard—no nothing much, and I have wondered where and how the farmers live, and where they keep their much, and I have wondered where and how the farmers live, and where they keep their gathered crops. A few pens covered with poles and straw keep the corn. The cats are am sorry for the good wife and the girls who have to live this way. There is no sufficient excuse for it either. Lumber is high and brick are high, but they might plant shade trees and fix up a little. In this immediate region, from Temple to Lampasas, there are some hopeful signs of better improvements, and I reckon it will come all right atter while.

Mr. Burnett took me to the Centennary college that he is building as a memorial to John Wesley and Methodism, which is now 100 years old. He is one of nature's carnest men—tireless, aggressive and eloquent—a Methodist ploneer who years ago made a violent assault upon Texas' lawlessness and iniquity. He pioneer who years ago made a violent assault upon Texas' lawlessness and injuity. He presched here among them when it was perilous to do so, and they threatened him and tried to bulldoze him, but they couldent. I was told that on one occasion when they told him they would whip him with a lariat if he dared to preach, he mounted the rude platform and laid an open dirk knife on the shelf beside his Bible, and said: "My unpenitent friends, I have come here to preach the gospel and run the Gospel mill; I am a free, white American citizen; I am 21 years of Gospel mill; I am a free, white American citizen; I am 21 years of age; I have a right to preach, and, God willing, I am going to do it whether you are willing or not. I have no weapons but this good knife, and if I can't preach in peace I will preach fighting and fight preaching. If I have got to fight just let it begin and I'll get a piece of somebody's ear for my baby to cut teeth-on."

But it is wonderful what one man can do. They tell me that Judge Binkley made Sherman and Peter Smith made Fort Worth, and keeps on making it. and I believe that Mr. Burnett and Peter Smith made Fort Worth, and keeps on making it, and I believe that Mr. Burnett will make Lampasas and the college too if they will let him. He reminds me of our Sam Jones in his "get up-and-go-at-it" in his zeal and cheerfulness—in his companionship with everybody, whether rich or peor. He is not so blunt in speech as Sam nor so sarcastic and uses more genial methods among the people. There is one man power and one man threes for things, and it seems to be a dispensation of a wise Provinence. One time when in New York I saw a man away up 400 feet in the sir, repainting the cross on top of when in New York I saw a man away up 400 feet in the air, repainting the cross on top of the spire of Trinity church and I wondered that a man could be found in all that great city who would do it either for money or fame, and I was told that there were but two, and they were never so happy as when swinging on a little scaffold from two to four hundred feet in the air. There are men for every duty that is to be performed. Sam Jones is building the orphans' home in Georgia and Mr. Burnett has just begun his grand scheme in Texas. Now let some one man in Alabama and Mississippi, and the other southern states, follow suit.

Lampasas is the second of the great wool markets of Texas. About three million pounds are shipped from here annually. Hides are hauled here from a large area and constitute a good trade for the town. Pecans are shipped away by the carload and all the little boys and girls make their spending money by gathering them from the groves around the town.

This county almost borders upon the vast demain of free grass, where the cattle and sheep are raised by the million. But it is not all free grass now. Free grass must and a going. Many wealthy ranchmen in with wire, and there are lon.

all painfully straight, and the highway lying between. Before long the nigh cuts from town to town and ranch to ranch will be closed up between. Before long the nigh cuts film town to town and ranch to ranch will be closed up and free roads will pass away with free grass.

Georgia and Alabama are well represented here. Indeed they make up the largest class of immigrants in this section. They are at Temple and Belton, and all around there, and all along the line to this place. They seem to move along together on the same parallel. The Missourians drop down upon northern Texas but there are not many this far away. I did not know that I would find even one acquaintance here but I have met a dozen. Here is Dave Price, a son of our old sheriff whom the people of Floyd loved to honor. Dave took me to his beautiful home and as I looked upon his very handsome wife and beautiful children I felt a grateful pride in the Georgia boys who had emigrated to this goodly land and done so well. I met my friend Stalkings, from Newnan, and who was with me in the legislature of 1865—the last assembly that was white—all white.

Well, I met Dr. Wells of Rome, and Looney of Cave Spring, and Tatum of Dade, and Lewis of Upson, and Higdon of Calhoun, and Allen of Upson, and Higdon of Calhoun, and Allen of Upson—I don't know how many more, both men and women, whose families or whose kindred I know in Georgia.

But I must say farewell to Lampasas and her hospitable people. They are sociable and they are kind and are proved of their young city that four Lampsons and her hospitable people. They are sociable and they are kind and are proud of their young city that four years ago had but a handful of people. Its ruture is hopeful, and the time is near at hand when it will be the resort of thousands for health or pleasure. Texans should treasure this town and make it a Texans not for it is this town and make it a Texas pet, for it is about the only one of any note in Texas. Georgia and Tennessee and North Carolina have them all about, but Texas has not. I had a pleasant meeting with Jefferson Lamar. had a pleasant meeting with Jefferson Lamar, as con of Colonel Lucius Lamar, of Pulaski, whom the people of Georgia love and delight to honor. He is a drummer from St. Louis—a noble young man who has not torgotten or dishonored the noble ancestry from which he sprang. The young man was very kind to me, and I love him for his own sake and his father's sake, whom I learned to love away back at Manassas, when he was the colonel of the eighth Georgia regiment. The moisture gathered in the boy's eyes and his face glowed with filial enthusiasm as he talked to me about his parents and his long absence from the home of his youth. But the sacrifice must be made—the boys must go.

LANDONIA, Fannin Co., Texas, March 24.—
Bill Arp—Dear Sir: Having been an appreciative reader of your quaint, sensible and entertaining writ ngs, since I was ten years old, I eagerly read your article in The Constitution of the 17th inst., to see what you said of Texas.

of Texas.
Well, Billy, after reading the article I saw more vividly than ever the humorous vein that pervaded it, and I think you can see the same when you think of the wonderful feat you have achieved in writing a description of so land and an account of the manners and customs of its people from observation, taken from a car window and from conversing with he Joe Mulhattons.

the Joe Mulhattons.

You say "there is no inviting homes, no painted houses, no fences or ornaments, no good barns, no nothing much, but scrubby borses and poor cattle."

The inference is, that there is nothing in the country except a few smoky cabins, miles and miles anart since, as you say in the next para-

Now, in answer to that, if you will as-Now, in answer to that, if you will accompany the writer who has traveled over the greater portion of Georgia, on a week's jaunt over any county of north Texas you will see a greater number of comfortable, and even elegant country homes, and "good barns," fine horses and fat cattle and forest after forest of orchards than ever he found in the whole state of Georgia; and comfortable softer, houses in every community. After you reach Danison you make new discoveries and learn that "lumber is eighteen dollars a hundred;" and in consequence the "people formerly weather boarded their houses with rawhides." Great snake-killers, fishers and shades of Gulliver snake-killers, fishers and shades of Gulliver come down! since Denison was first located on the envirous of the Red river prairies.

Why sir, when I was a kid, when the wolf nightly howled in front of the cabin door, when the scream of the panther was a familiar sound, and whoop of the painted Comanche was heard in the land, and lumber was hauled with ox teams from the prairies of east Texas was not worth more than four or five dollars a hundred.

The house weatherboarded with rawhide is an old, old story. I have heard of it, but have never seen it, though my earliest recollection is associated with the prairies and groves of north Texas, when its beaut'es were but slightly marred by the works of man.

I am atraid some of the boys poured into willing ears stories that they will tell again and laugh about how they entertained the world renowned humorist.

Come to see us again, our Billy, for we all ike you. Yours truly, RAH HYDE.

That Mountain Mule!

"Knocks 'èm all higher then a Rocky Mountain mule can kick." As I was passing a car stable between Twentyeighth and Twenty-ninth streets, St. Louis, one osy last summer, the above remark caught my ear. Turning, I saw two of the stablemen in earnest conversation. Now, I confess to a friendly feeling for the mule. His meek endurance of insults and lesbwhips excites my admiration. To be sure he is homely, but then he does not aspire to shine in society, and hever even presents his "claims" to office upon the more highly favored politicians of his ward. But when his soul is stirred within him he can and does kick. It is his one protest against grinding despotism. Why should vain man ridicule and asperse his only accomplishment?

Filled with these reflections, I demanded of the speaker why he, too, joined the thoughtless crowd in talking lightly of the mule. He replied: "My name is Charley Smith, and I work in this stable. I mean no offense to the mule. I was just telling Bill here about that big attack of rheumatism I had awhile ago and what cared it. I told him nothing touched it till I struck Benson's Capsine Plasters, and they soon fixed me up all right."

"Plasters, Mr Smith," saidd. "as Bret Harter sang about the Mississippi steamboat engineers, are 'pretty much all allies,"

"Scarcely," said Smith, "there's no end of odds between 'em. I tried all they had in the drug stores, and Benson's leaves 'em all out 'o sight."

"In what way?"

"Why, when you first put 'em on they warm up the sore spot, they go down to the pain and stop it, and make your muscles limber and strong again. The rest of the plasters don't do that. There's no use talking, they just knock all the rest higher'n a Rocky mountain mule can kick."

"Smith was incorrigible and probably right, and in mentioning the incident I only regret that it gives Fenson's plaster people the benefit of a free advertisement.

Auction Sales—Keal Estate.

TRIERSON & SCOTT AUCTIONEERS—LAST OF the beautiful and valuable Dillon propert, 67 splendia lots at auction to-morrow, Monday April 13, 2:39 o'clock. Free ride on specia, Marietta Street Cars at 2:39 sharpl We will sell on the ground to morrow at hai-past two o'clock, 67 beautiful and very valuable lots, being the last of the "Dillon property," of Marietta street, opposite the Exposition hotel. Well known facts. It is well known and generally admitted that there is no prettier, no better located and no more rapidly enhancing property on the suburbs of Atlanta. It is the safest and best investment offered. Every purchaser at the two former sales made big profits on short time. Some over doubled their money. No suburban property has a better future, and none offers greater inducements for profitable investments or speculation. The lots will all soon be taken and built on. This is the last sale, and all the few lots will be closed out. All who wish to make money easily and quickly, without any risk, should be sure to attend this sale and buy as many lots as possible. Those who have plenty of money and don't want any more, need not attend this sale. See and judge for yourself. Every one is requested to go out and examine this property. A little over a year ago it was a vacant old field, notia to go out and examine this property. A over a year ago it was a vacant old field, house on it. Now houses are scattered all o

to go out and examine this property. A little over a year ago it was a vacant old field, not a house on it. Now houses are scattered all over it, and in a yery short time eyery lot left will have a house on it. It is on Marietta Street Car line, therefore easy of access. It is on one of the greatest thoroughfanes leading into Atlanta, which makes the front lots yeluable for business stands. It is one of the highest, prettiest and most desirable locations around Atlanta for homes, and will always be popular for residences or renting houses. It is just out of the city limits, therefore exempt from city taxes, yet houses will rent as well there as inside the limits and will pay a much larger interest. There is no suburban property of Atlanta that has a better prospect for future improvement and developement, and none that will increase in value more rapidly, therefore it is the safest and best property to:buy. Every purchaser at this sale will as surely realize a big profit in a short time as the world stands. New houses are now going up on the property, and contracts have been let for the building of several hand some dwellings which will soon be begun, and in a short while the entire property will be built up and no more lots can be had. The property speaks for itself, and any sensible man who will go out and examine it will at once decide that it is the place to buy. Remember the time and be on hand. Take a plat and select your lots before the sale. The lots that are numbered on the plat are the ones to be sold, and they are staked and numbered on the ground so any one can easily find them. The titles to every lot are as good as any in the city. There is not a shadow of doubt about the titles being absolutely perfect. They have een fully examined by fully 25 of the best lawyers in Atlanta. The terms of sale are easy, so any and all who want lots can buy them. Sale will be positive. Terms, % cash, balance 6 and 12 months at 5 per cent interest. Frierson & Scott, Real Estate Agents, No. I, S. Pryor St., cor. Deca

A PLAIN PROPOSITION.

It is probable that England and Russia will go to war. If they do, there will be stubborn and prolonged fighting. Such a war will teach the southern farmer a very plain lesson. It will put down the price of cotton, and put up the price of wheat and pork. The first intimation the eneral public had that fighting had actually egun in the Afghan mountains was in the decline of a quarter of a cent in cotton, and a corresponding rise in flour and meat. That farmer is always most to be envied who has plenty of bread and mest for his farm, without going in debt for it. More than ever will this be the case if war begins in earnest between the two great powers that are now threatening each other. War appears to be inevitable, and the southern farmer will be wise if he curtails his cotton acreage and increases his wheat fields and as his pig pens. It is probable that in the next twelve months a pound of cotton will buy less meat and bread than at any time in the last ten years. THE RACE TO HERAT.

Just the moment war between England and Russia becomes a fact, there will doubtess be a footrace to Herat. The side that reaches there and is able to gain possession of the town and of its fortifications and strong points, will not be easily dislodged, and will probably be able to hold it to the end of the struggle. If England is first in the coming race, she will have no battle to fight at Herat for the forces and the people on the spot are her ellies. The Russians on the other hand would probably be compelled to lay seige to the town and its defenses. The ameer's army should not be underrated. He is known to have 67,000 men under arms, divided into four corps. One corps is kept in Cabul and the adjacent country, but the other three corps, embracing 27,800 infantry, 8.800 cavalry and 116 guns, will confront the Russians, and if pressed back will form the garrison and army of defense at Herat. The ameer's troops may be able in any event to hold Herat until the English and Indian troops can come to their assistance.

It is very difficult to say how strong the Russians are in the neighborhood of Herat, so secret and mysterious are their movements. hey ur questionably have a considerable force at Chamen-i-bed, a point not over 100 miles from Herat. This place is on the Kushk river, about 30 miles south of Penjdeh, which is, however, on another river. Chamen i-bed is on the frontier proposed by Mr. Lessar, but it is fully 60 miles north of the line c'aimed by the Russians. The latter line in 30 miles of Herat. It is not nown that the Russians have any soldiers south of Chamen-i-bed; neither is it known bow many men they have south of Merv in the vallies of the Hari Rud, the Murghab and Kushk rivers. These rivers afford the only practicable routes to Herat. They may not have over 10,000 men below Merv, but the chances are they have three times that number ready to make a hundred-mile dash

The English bave 26,000 men massed in the Pishni valley and at Quetta, but Quetta is 490 miles from Herat. The railroad is to be pushed with all possible speed through Bolan Pass to Quetta and Candahar and Herat, unless the Russians prevent.

It is perhaps safe to say that each side has about 50,000 ready for marching orders—the Russian force being not over 200 mil s from Herat, and the British force at Bolan Pass, at 300 miles from there. The Russians have, therefore, the advantage of 100 miles, but this advantage, in distance and time, may be lost through the resistance that ghans can offer to the advancing Rus-will now proceed to force her from the terriory under dispute, and a clash will follow. It has gone almost too far for either side to peaceably withdraw. In the meantime, the drum of England's army is summoning its soldiers in all parts of the world, while Russ a fiercely shows her teeth and eagerly awaits her coming.

ATLANTA'S HISTORY. Every city in the United States should hav ts Historical society.

Many of the older cities and towns in the north were in existence a century before organizing such societies, and it is a matter of great regret that they did not begin earlier. By their delay they have lost many notable incidents in their colonial history Atlanta has reached a stage where everythin is ripe for the organization of a society that would have little difficulty in gathering and putting in good shape everything relating to the history of the city and the region around it. Men are still living among us who were here when the forests were unbroken and the noble red man had it all his own way. They saw the first white man's cabin built. They stablished Marthasville. They saw the firs iron horse come puffing and snorting over the first railroad. They saw the little village grow into a city. They stood Sherman's savege siege, saw the city given to the torch and later, saw it rise from the ashes and gradually assume its present proportions.

With a historical society the recollections of these old pioneers could be preserved and handed down to future generations, In a few years more it will be too late. We can now get the history of Atlanta from the men who made it, and the opportunity should not

The Chronicle Centennial.

From the Chronicle and Constitutionalist. We have beretofore called attention to the facthat the Chronicle was established in 1785, and with this year completes a century of existence In the beginning the paper was a small one, a quaint looking little gazette, printed on old fash-ioned type, and containing very moderate quantities of rather venerable news. But that day was the day of small things for other matters than journalism. This state of Georgia was then made up of but ten counties, all told, being in a sparsely settled strip along the Savannah. As the state grew the paper grew, and now that, at the end of an hundred years, the little old fashioned weeky gazette has developed into the modern daily newspaper, so has the state broadened out into commonwealth of fair proportions and noble capabilities. It is something for a paper to say, We are now a century old,—but that gratification is much intensified when it can make the event is much intensified when it can make the event the occasion of something more than mere vainglory—when in celebrating its own centennial, it can, through that celebration, turn the eyes of all towards the prospects and advantages of its native state. We esteem it a most fortunate coincidence that in the year when the Chronicle completes a century of journalistic experience the attention of the whole United States, and, we may add, of much of Europe, too, is directed toward the south. The great exposition at New Orleans is the opening of a new world to mapp eyes. The old time doice far niente south, the theorizing south, the war-waging south, men know, but how shall they know the south of to-day unless we bring them down into the land to see.

At New Orleans are exhibited innumerable evidences of the glorious natural dowry of the runny south. The wealth wherewith the good Creator hath blessed it is there displayed. Our sisters to the right and to the left of us are officially known there, and have, as it were, their sign manuals and heralds there to proclaim and manifest their cababilities and their resources.

The other day notleing the centenary of the London Times, which antedates that of the Chronicle by only two or three months, we took occasion to state the belief that the New Zealander who is to behold from London bridge the ruins of St. Paul's would have in his hand a copy of the morning edition of the paper published amid the "wreck of matter and the creath of worlda." It may not be immodest, comparing ourselves with due humility to the "thunderer" of the British empire, to confidently predict that, ages hence, when trans Rocky mountain cowbors may hum welves among tha dismanuled carridors of the capital at Washington, the Chronicle will be issued, and that the editor of that day may wonder at the old longey is mof this, to us, unparaelled err of progress, as the present writer marvels at the dall-ness of journalism one hundred years ago.

From Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist. One of the most dispassionate and convincing erticles upon which the negro question we have yet seen, is from the pen of Mr. Henry W. Grady, in the last "Century." "In Plain, Black and White" is an answer to Mr. George W. Cable's theory, remarkable only for its startling sentimentality and harsh conclusions. Mr. Grady's writing is free from passion or prejudice. It is logical, incisive, sensi-ole, and spells out the whole matter, letter by let-

Mr. Grady speaks in the name of the south, and and experience to the south, and is well equipped by training and experience to treat the subject from our standpoint. He holds with perfect truth that there is an instinct, in eradicable and positive, that will keep the races spart. Mr. Cable's suggestion of social intermingling of races can never be adopted. The south can never be driven into accepting it. An antagonism is bred between the races where they are forced into a mixed assemblage. This sinks out of sight, if not out of existence, when such race moves in its own subject. euce, when each race moves in its own sphere. Mr. Grady intimates that if this instruct did not Mr. Grady believes that it is yet possible to carr orward, in the same soil and under the same law forward, in the same soil and under the same laws, two races equally free, practically equal in numbers, and yet entirely distinct and separate. The south, as exemplified most admirably by the state of Georgia, has been doing this very thing for ten years. In their social institutions, as in their churches and schools, the negroes have obeyed their instinct and kept apart from the whites. Public carriers are giving the colored man equal though separate accommodations. In the courts, whether as client, defendant or juror, Mr. Grady shows that the cause and condition of the colored man are being duly respected. The blacks are admitted to the jury box as they lift themselves to the limit of qualification.

An. Grady reaches the wise conclusion that the south must be allowed to settle the social relations of the races according to her own views of what is right and best. The victorious armies of the north, had they rallied again for their homes, could not have enforced and maintained among this unsamed people the policy indicated in the civil rights bill. The south must control the social relations of the fwo races. It is right that she should have this control. The problem is hers and her very existence depends upon its proper solution. Every consideration of policy, of honer, of pride impels her to the exactest justice. For these reasons she has assumed to herself the right to settle the race problem, and this right she can never yield. This implies the clear and unmistakable domination of the white race in the south. Fully aware of her responsibility, conscious that every error may endanger her peace and her reputation, she says to the world: "Leave this problem to my working out." This article is the soundest and most statesmanlike we have yet seen from Mr. Grady. It is written with the air of a practical men and content of the world." like we have yet seen from Mr. Grady. It is written with the air of a practical man and yet with the convictions of a sage, and is the clearest answer yet made to the vexations queries of the race problem.

In discussing his literary work I ventured to suggest that thought it was a mistake in his "Dre Sevier" to permit the spy to fall in love with Mary Richling while she was confided to his care in the ride through the woods. He expressed surprise at the criticism and said he prided himself on that episode, and on the heroism of the spy in overpowering his impulses through a sense of chivalry and delicacy even when he did not know that she had a husband.

Mr. R. W. Gilder, the editor, and Mr. Frank cott, the treasurer of the Century Magazine, spent Friday in Atlanta, en route to the Louisiana home of Joe Jefferson, where they spend a week. They were surprised at the thrift, energy and city like look of Atlanta-but pronounced Charleston most charming of American cities.

The Century continues its amazing growth in rculation, the first edition of the May number reaching 250,000 copies. The series of war papers has proved immensely popular. At 27 cents copy, the wholesale price, this edition would bring about $65,000 for the month. To this must be added about fifty pages of advertising, paying, it is said, $300 a page, or $15,000. This would carry the income of the magazine up to about one mil-

It is pleasant to know that the success of the new hotel is extraordinary. An offer of $25,000 a year for the bar, billiard room and barber shop been made and declined. This, with the rental of the stores, would have given the lessees, after paying the interest on the bonds and dividends on the preferred stock, the hotel rent free and $5,000 cash surplus. The daily receipts of the bar and billiard room prove the wisdom of declining the offer. At the newstand about $200 a month is cleared on sales of THE CONSTITUTION alone.

A well known firsneier said to me, the other A well known firsheder said to me, the other day: "We are all smazed at the growth of New York city. Let me give you may idea of the one thing that has done more to promote that growth than any other. It is the state insurance haw, which forbids any company operating under a New York charter lending money on any real estate that is not within fifty miles of New York city. To show you what an enormous capital this con-centrates in New York, I need only mention that the Mutual Life company alone has more capital than the combined banks of New York city. All this capital it must invest in or lend on real estate in or around New York. Hence the enorm building going on there constantly. The New York cotton exchange wanted a large sum with which to finish its building. It secured it readily at 436 per cent."

"It draws this money from all sections and concentrates it in New York?"

"Precisely. I was in a small crowd of Atlan tisns the other day that sent over $3,000 annual premiums to New York companies. This was drained out of Atlanta, never to return, but to be permanently invested there. Now take the other ide of the case. I understand the Atlanta Home cleared something like $25,000 on its Atlanta busi nes last year. This $25,000 it kept at home, and leaned to men who used it building or improving property in Atlanta, Suppose we had kept at nome all the money we paid out for insurance last year? How it would have built up our city. The men who have established the Atlanta Ho ought to establish another company on the same plan, and we ought to keep our insurance preniums at home."

An English company has been organized for th purpose of lending money on farm produce, and will have an agent in Atlanta. Its plan is to operate here mainly on cotton. It supplies its agents with money to be loaned on warehouse eccipts for cotton, at a low rate. This will enable any farmer to hold his cotton for good price instead of having to rush it in and sell it, when the speculators knowing it has to be sold have put down the prices. The farmers of Georgia would have made largely this season if they could have held their cotton and sold it at their pleasure, instead of rushing it in to pay ther debts

THE BASEBALL SEASON.

The League Games to Open Next Tuesday -The Great Chicagos To-Morrow, To-morrow the Atlantes play the Chicagos, best and most famous club in the world. On Wednesday the schedule games of the Southern league begin, the northern clubs going into the southern tier. The Constitution will print daily reports of each league game and on Sundays will print a summary.

The Game With the Chicagos. To-morrow for the first time Atlanta will see National league game play ball. It is the best and most famous club in America the chicagos. Three times it has won the championship of the world, and last year lost it only through dissensions in the team. Each one of its players is renowned. Anson, the first baseman, has been to bat 2,800 times and made 1,650 hits, a record approached by no other player. Piefler, the second baseman, Kelly right fielder, and Willemson, the third baseman, hold the records as the three longest throwers in the world. Sutthree longest throwers in the world. Sai hat measure 7% inches across the palm, size up is pig hams, and deliver the ball like a rifle shot ard, who played so famously as short top i ansyilles, is with the Chicagos, and every a a brilliant record.

No lover of the sport should fail to see the matchless "White Stockings." It is a chance that may never come sgain. The Atlantas, while almost hopeless of beating them, will play a stiff game, and bring out all the fine points of the visitors. The home club deserves credit for holding the admission price at the same figures, despite the heavy expense of bringing the Chicagos here. They will be rewarded with the biggest crowd ever seen in Athletic park.

The Southern League Outlook The contest for the championship of the South-ern league is going to develop some fine playing. The teams are well selected, and are ex-ceptionally heavy batters. Two points are settled: 1. The clubs are strong ones. Their salary list will average $1,500 a month, and the men have been carciully selected. They have met the Lou-isvilles, Indianapolis, Cincinnatis, Cierciands and villes, Indianapolis, Cincinnatis, Cievalands and hiesgos, and here held their own with them, aving beaten every club except the Chicagos. Le northern papers have been astonished at the coord made by the southern clubs in the exhibirecord made by the southern clubs in the example ion season.

2. The clubs are evenly matched. Only two of them, Chattanooga and Nashville, have met, and each of those two won a game. Comparing the games played with visiting clubs, the southern teams are close together. The managers who have played them all say the championship contest will be very close.

With the clubs strong and closely matched, the season must be a brilliant one. It may be added that each southern club is backed by an enthusiastic city, and will be able to arrengthen any weak points that may develop in the early games. The team that wears the penuant will deserve it and will be able to match that best clubs of the country. Every schedule game will be played for all if is worth, for every game will count in the grand total.

No Sunday games will be allowed in the South ern league—no liquor sold on the grounds, and no betting permitted in any of the parks under con-trol of the league. Everything has been done to clevate the game and entitle it to the support it receives from the best people in the southern cities.

Atlanta Victorious.

Yesterday's contest at Athletic park was one of the most stubbornly contested and exciting games ever played in Atlanta. The features of the game were the long hits of Goldsby and Dupdop, a remarkable fly catch by Goldsby and Dundon, a remarkable fly catch by Cleveland back of third, a brilliant catch by Clark in right field and the pitching of Baner. Although poorly supported by McVey, he pitched a great game. McVey was extremely unfortunate, all his errors being costly. It was an off day with "Mac," and in his next game he will no doubt show up in his usual good form.

On Monday the celebrated Chicago White-Stockings put in an appearance. That will be the last game until May 4, as the home club begins its championship tour on Wednesday next.

Man-ager Hart, of the Louisvilles, says Kliroy, of the Augustas, puzzled his men more than any other. A number of Atlanta directors will go to Augusta with the team for the first game. The Clevelands are the strongest club the Atlan-tas have met this season.

Atlanta has a Health Resort.

Dr. Betts was born a physician and nurse, but afterwards took the precaution to attend the best medical colleges in the land, graduating with honors in four of them. From the time the doctor was old enough to read he has been a close student of medicine and hygine. Mr. Holcombe, an old citizen of Atlanta, had been suffering from crysipelas in the feet for thirty years. He had spent thousands of dollars for medicines, and had been to Hot Springs. From the Augusta Chronicle and Constitutionalist Very much more than can be taken in a superficial glance is meant by a rounded century of time. Volumes and pages could be written upon the theme of all-embracing events that cluster within the last hundred years. Three generation An Engineer's Escape.

It is due my railroad and other friends to give them the facts in connection with my late escape, in Atlanta.

Three years ago I was running an engine in the malerial districts of Alabama. I contracted malerial tever and chills, with torpid liver and constipation, followed by loss of appetite, great debility, indigestion and nervous prostration. The doctors all failed, both in Alabama and on my return to Atlanta, to cure me or in the feast arrest the rapid progress of the disease. I was forced to give up my position, unable for many long months to return to business. During this time I spent about $1,000 hard earned money with the doctors and patent medicines. All totally failed to give me the least relief, until, by the recommendation of friends, I commenced the use of Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir. My health began at once to rapidly improve, and in two months I was able to again take charge of my engine, in perfect health and vigorous manhood, at an expense of only a few dollars.

This, my friends, is what Dr. H. Mozley's Lemon Elixir did for T. B. BOGGUS,
I refer to all the engineers of the E. T., V. & G. R. R., as to these facts.

the theme of all-embracing events that cluster within the last hundred years. Three generations of mankind have been born, and the vast majority of those generations departed to the land of shadows. Here and there, as in the case of Sir Moses Montefiori, of England, and of Dr. C. O. Graham, of Kentucky, a remnant of highly favored persons can claim to have spanned the years of the Chronicle; but these exceptions are few and far between. When the Chronicle first existed Napoleon was a school boy at Brienne, storming snow forts; but little droaming that he was to make the ton of Europe as a conqueror, to unite his name indisselubly with the pyramids, to become emperor of France, and a captive upon a lone barren isle in the Atlantic. When the Chronicle was first issued, Lord Byron had not been born. Three years were to clapse before that event, which began the career of a mighty but wretched spirit that still haunts the Alps, the Appenines and morass of Missoloughi. The Chronicle, in 1821, recorded the death of the renowned Nopoleon, and in 1824 that of the famous poet, whose shade glooms through "old Ravennas' lair." The vanquisher of nations and "the pilgrim of eternity" have long departed, but the Chronicle remains more vigorous, prosperous and vital than at any period of its existence

Consider this paper has antedated, by many years, the application of steam to commerce on the seas and railway transportation upon land; that the telegraph, telephone, gas illumination, electrical light and motorship areas of yesterday compared with the Chronicle in chronicogic order. The wonderful and world revolutionizing discoveries of Hargreaves and Awright were in their infancy when the Chronicle began, and Whitney had not hit upon his invention of the formation of the republic of the United States and its unrivalled progress, in war and peace, to the front rank of nationalities, Kings and presidents, emperors and suttans, the masters of science, and song, and story, have come and gone, along with statesmen and warriors of Plats ready at my office Wednesday 15th instant. The Boulevard lot is 70x165 ft, with side alley. It is one block from where street car crosses Boulevard, and between Mrs. Swift's and Mr. W. T. It is on the highest and most beautiful stretch of the Boulevard, with an east front, where the air and water are pure and the views the finest. Many think that the Boulevard will, in a few years, rival Peachtree in the elegance of its homes and grounds, and surpass it as a fashionoble drive.

The lot on the corner of Pine and Blackmon streets is very near the residences of Judge McCay and Mr. Osborne, and will be immediately on the contemplated street car line from Peachtree via Pine street to Jackson. It is a nice building lot and must enhance in value. The sale will be without reserve. Terms, half cash, balance six and twelve months, with 8 per cent interest. Talk with Dr. Joseph Thompson-What Made i lants-Rew it was Named-Mr. J. Edgar Thompson, of Pennsylvania-The Re-mantic History of the City-Bia.

A little more than forty years ago a lone wooden banty in a forest, and the upturned earth mark-ng with its red line to the easte-n horison the ath which had but cut for an iron highway towhich had but cut for a roth inglaws to-the ses, were the only material prophecy and ise of Atlanta. Fet they were enough to in-in the minds of a few clear-sighted, strong-ed men a dream that a great city would some wn the heights that then bore no burden the tossing spiendors of the oak and pine, years which have intervened between dream and its realization have brought a new generation on the scene. One by one the actors in that roman-tic period have passed away until now only a few of them remain to witness the fulfilment of the wildest prediction of the most Alcadian pioneer. In this small company there is yet to be found one of the earliest of the city's projectors, one of the most hopeful of those who laid its rude foundations, one of the firmest in the faith amid all its trials that it had a spirit that would not die, and one of the proudest of men that he has lived to old it as it is to-day. is in his eighty-ninth year. Up to twelve months ego he was a most remarkable specimen of physical and mental preservation. He was straight as an arrow, his step was quick and firm, his clear, blue eyes scorned the aid of glasses, his hearty greetings, his fresh love of social pleasure, his fine humor, his keen observation, and the ready command of the rich stores in his well kept memory made him a conspicuous and venerable figure among a generation that he has known from its cradie. An attack of crystpelas has kept him confined at home for a year. It has shackled one of his ankles, but it has no power over his cheerful heart and his active brain. It is a rare pleasure to sit by the old gentleman and woo him back into the days which are hidden with their misty traditions behind the startling events and the sweeping resolutions of the past half century. An hour or two of a bright morning recently went swiftly by while I enjoyed such a privilege at the doctor's home on Pryor street. I referred to his intimate acquaintance with the early history of Atlanta, and he said: "Yes, I have known Atlanta since there was anything to know about it. I may say I was present at its birth. I came to Decatur in 1826, when all this part of Georgia was a wild. The great land lottery had just been hold. I was in if, and drew two lots up in what is now Bartow county. The Indians had been crowded back gradually by the encroachments of the white settlers until they were pressed west of the Chattahoochee. Still they used to come across constantly, and the sight of Indians in Decatur was so common that no one noticed them. In those days you know, Decatur was a considerable place. It had a good trade. It was one of the towns where the supreme court was held and it was a great gathering place for lawyers and politicians, I lived in Decatur from 1826 to 1845, keeping a hotel there. About 1840 the railroad fever broke out and the Georgia railroad was projected from Augusts to connect with the Western and Atlantic railroad. The railroads were finding their way from the mountains to the sea. The four is a surface of the comment to have a some now and stop in the Georgia road was surveyed as far as urfaced a sea surfaced was some ta blue eyes scorned the aid of glasses, his hearty greetings, his fresh love of social pleasure, as clearly in his head as he did the Georgia road. He knew it must be built. He narked out on his map every one of the railroads that now go out of Atlanta. He was convinced that this was to be a great distributing point, and he knew that it would have railroads indiating in every direction. When the Georgia road was nearly finished to this point Thompson spoke to me about leaving Decatur and moving here. He told me he was going to build a dine hotel here, and wanted me to take it. By this time I believed there was going to be a town at the end of the line, and I agreed to do it. Thompson went ahead and on the very spot where

THE KIMBALL HOUSE The similar House which which was afterwards known as the Atlanta hotel, and stood until Sherman burnt it. I remember how the people laughed at this man for building a fine hotel in the woods. The directors of the road thought it was throwing money away, and compelled Thompson to contract his plans somewhat. When the hotel went up there was not a house on the present site of Atlanta except a little wooden building where the railroad hands kept their tobis. I sold out in Decatur and came up against the advice of nearly every body, to keep this hotel in the woods. It was finished in 1845, Thompson bought the present Kimball house lot and the land on which James bank block and the stores below it to Pryor street stand, and the block where the centennial building is up to Broad street, all for $500. People made railroads pay high prices then as they do now. This land is worth nearly a million dollars to day. I suppose.

That brick hotel was the nucleus of Atlanta. They commenced building all around it at once, and we had a pretty good town here. First, they built around a square as they usually do in country towns. Then they began to build out along the road to Decatur and the road to Marietta and out toward East Point in the direction of the old Whitehall tavern. The building was rapid and people seemed to come in from all directions to Marthasville, as we called it them.

"How came the name changed to Atlanta?" nds he had built a three-story brick hotel, said, "Let's call it Atlanta. How will that convenient to the travelling public. It ought be as close to the railroads as possible."

"The old Atlanta hotel was the scene of a great many stirring incidents, I suppose?"

"Yes. It was the center of the city geographically and every other way. All the gossip and every other way. All community could be pathered there first. It was within a lew feet of the "car shed." It was head quarters for politicians, whig and democratic. Atlants very early became a great place for cauventions of all kinds. One reason was because the railroads made it so accessible. And then it has always been a stirring place, on the lookout for such advantages. Politics ran high here before the war. They had some of the bitterest local elections I ever saw, and state politics got hotter around here, it seemed, than anywhere else. I watched the course of these things chaeling the whigh it never took an active part in politics. I generally voted the whig ticket because the whigs had the brains of the state. I can recall a great many impressive incidents that happend a gr when secession was brewing. The big men of Geor-gla were moving about then and they felt that an awful crisis was at hand. Among them all one fig-are stands out clearest and grandest before me.

iid when he was in his prime. There was no effort to lord it over them, but an nnate majesty of mien and manner that made him kingly. He always made a sensation when he came. I could mention a great many distinguished men from all parts of the country who, for one reason or another, came to Atlanta in those stormy days. Jefferson Davis held a great open air reception in the old city park just in front of the Atlanta hotel, when he was on his way to Montgomery to be inaugurated. The park was the place for big public meetings. The crowds used to gather there and call on the big men who were stopping at the hotels around the square for speeches. The Atlanta hotel was where the Kimball now stands. The Trout houss was on Decatur street, just below, and Washington hall stood where the Markham house is. The park between them was the common meeting place in times of popular, excitement. One incident which I often think of in connection with the old Atlanta hotel was the by Judge Cone. I have always had my own idea about that unfortunate affair. I liked both Cone and Stephens, and the difficulty between them arose purely from a misunderstanding. Cone heard that Stephens had said something about heard that Stephens had said something about him which he had never said. I think he was instigated to his bitterness toward Stephens by a man who is yet living and whose mame I could give. This man played the "Rancy Sniffler" and got up the row. One Sunday I noticed him and Cone walking up and down the frent piazza of the hotel, talking very earnestly about something. They constantly walked to the end of the plazza and by their actions convinced me that they were waiting for some one. After awhile the Macon train came in. I saw Mr. Stephens get off and start toward the hotel, carrying a light walking cane in his hand. I went in to the hotel and a few moments afterwards heard a scuffle on the piazza. I ran out and was surprised to see Judge Cone brandishing a knife over Mr. Stephens. I rushed to him and caught his arm, remonstrating with him as best I could. I saw the knife was bloody. It was an ugly, long, narrow blade, and was in the hand of a powerful man, who was furfous. I had to look out for myself as well as Mr. Stephens. So with my-left hand I caught hold of Stephens, as he lay on the floor, and with my right hand I held Judge Cone by the wrist. Stephens was bleeding about the hand, where Cone had cut him. I asked what was the matter. Cone said Stephens had struck him with his cane. I said. "If he did, sir, that is no reason why you should cut him to pieces." In a moment Cone was cooler, and I thought I could notice that he saw he had acted rashly.

FIGHTING ITS WAY UP.

FIGHTING ITS WAY UP. "Atlanta," said the doctor, "had a hard struggle to get up. This was the poor part of Georgia. Nobody around here had much money. Negroes were scarce. The plantation part of the state held the capital and had its great markets like Savannah, Augusta, Macon and Columbus. Augusta was our metropolis. We bought everything there, and looked upon it as a wonderful city. But somehow people kept coming to Atlanta. Nearly all who came remained. The town began to extend out into the roads that led to it. In a very short time Thompson's prophecy that it would swallow up Decatur was fulfilled. Then people said it would stop. They thought the two railroads had done all they could to make a town in the forest. But there were men who saw the advantages of this situation as a distributing point and other roads were projected. Lines which Thompson had marked on his map were, in due time, found to be necessary. We got a road to Macon. Then ene to West Point, and the Air Line was about to be built when the war cut it off. Railroads made Atlanta. Coast cities and river towns no longer had a monoply of trade. Atlanta began to compete with Augusta. It was a thrifty, rapidly growing little city when the war came on. Then for four years it was an army depot and a battle ground. Then it became a ruin. Some folks thought that was the end of it. When I came back here soon after the evacuation I was bewildered. Every was gone. Here and there stood a house but the city had disappeared. The few of us who were here nardly knew what to 20. but we went to work. Rearly all the old citizens came once and many new ones. At first we thought about building up the town we had lost, but then we determined to build a better one. The idea of the Kimball house was a grand thing. The little hotel that stood on that spot before was the nucleous Savannah, Augusta, Mecon and Columbus, building up the town we had lost, but then we determined to build a better one. The idea of the Kimball house was a grand thing. The little hotel that stood on that spot before was the nucleous of the old town. The great hotel gave a wonderful impetus to the new town. It made men build better and bigger houses, and it showed the world what confidence we had in the future of the city. When the Kimball burned we all thought it a calamity. It was a hard thing to rebuild it. I said at one that it must be rebuilt on the same spot. That is the heart of Atlanta. I have not seen the new hotel, but I know what it is, and am proud of it. I hope I shall be able soon to get out and go down there. I want to see that house. It will have the same effect that both its predecessors did. They both made Atlanta a better town by setting a pattern. This is the finest pattern we have had yet and the city will come up to it."

Dr. Thompson was asked why Atlanta was not located on the Chattahoochea. He said:

"There is no site on the river comparable to the one that was chosen. The city would have been several hundred feet lower. It would not have been several hundred feet lower. It would not have been several hundred feet lower. It would not have been so healthy. There is no telling what we owe to the healthfuiness of this situation. The river would not have been worth anything for navigation, and Atlanta would have head to depend on the railroads any way. I think the city is about as well located as it could be."

"Do you think it will grow much more."

"Certainly do. I know it is one of the largest inland cities in the country now, but it is not near as large as it is going to be. It is getting new railroads all the time, which are reaching into every part of the territory around. Trade does not depend on rivers now. Railroads are what we must look to. No, sir, Atlanta's great days are to come yet. The city is growing comstantly, and there is no sense in saying it has reached its limit. For torty years I have been hearing the same and I shall not. But they are yet to come.

THE REST DAYS OF ATLANTA,
That is why I love to see things done on a big scale here.
I like the grand hotel, the big blocks, and all the improvements that look to better times and a bigger city." I like the grand hotel, the big blocks, and all the improvements that look to better times and a bigger city."

And so the old gentleman talked, warming into enthusiasm as he spoke of the future of the city whose every step he has watched with the fondest interest. He talked of the events of forty years ago as if they had happened the day before, but he did not speak as a veteran passing from the scene and rounding off his story. The spirit of the pioneer is as fresh within his breast as it was in '45, when he settled in a wilderness to wait for the rising of a city on the unmolested hills. Not one almision to the past, not one of its incidents or memories, seemed to stir him as did the buoyant burst of his faith in the future. How many men do we find with years behind them who can look into the future and asy.' The best is yet to come?' One such old man is worth ten thousand of the hoary sceptics who mourn the pust and becloud the future with their dismal doubts. Without faith like this Atlanta would not be what she is to-day. It was the courageous faith of a few men, a very few, that struck the first blows to clear the way through the unbroken forests for this highland queen, this Atlanta bringing the name of the imperial sea to new dominions in the far off heights. Now that she is firmly throned and with complacent pride draws tribute from a far-stretching sway her veterals are not foregotien. These were her first friends. When Mahomet was about to give over in despair because not one heart in the world could be find to warm his own in sym-

The time has come at last when the TERRIBLE AGONY incident to this critical period in a woman's life, can be avoided. A distinguished physician, who passed the greatest portion of his life, forty four years, in this branch of practice left to child bearing woman this priceless legacy and life saving appliance. "THE MOTHEE'S FRIEND," and to-day there are thousands of the best women in our land who having used this wonderful remedy before confinement, rise up and call his name blessed.

women in our land who haying used this wonderful remedy before confinement, rise up and call his name blessed.

We receive letters from every section of the country thanking us for placing this preparation in the reach of suffering woman. One lady from North Carolina writes us that she would like to thank the proprietors on her kness for bringing it to her notice, as in a previous confinement she had two doctors, and they were compelled to use chloroform, instruments, etc., and she suffered almost death, but this time she used "THE MOTHER'S FRIEND." and her labor was shoit, quick and almost like magic. Now why should a woman suffer when she can avoid it? We can prove all we claim by LIVING WITNESSES, and anyone interested can call or have their husbands doso, at our office, and see the original letters, which we cantout publish.

Bonds, Stocks and Money.

ATLANTA, April 11, 1895 Securities have had another quiet week, though first-class bonds are in fair demand.

Short date state bonds have changed hands free ly, buying being largely stimulated, we think, by the idea of an exchange for new fives. Bids for the new fives must, under the terms of the advertisement, be submitted by noon of next Wednes-day, 15th instant, and we look for bids on the 2,000,000, beliverable July 1, to be largely in excess of that amount, For the remote deliveries-225,000 January 1. 1886, and 800,000 June 1, 1886—we expect bids to be made, but whether at satisfactory prices we have some doubt. Rumors of pools, syndicates and combinations pervade the atmosphere, and some parties who couldn't put up a 5 per cent margin on a peck of pinders, are dodging around talking large and trying to create the impression that they are into the purchase. A New York party is on the ground, and is, we unled with a certified check for $175,000, which will make its appearance in the state treasurer's office when the bids are opened. The bonds are good and desirable, and if bids are not up to the figure justified by the character of the security we trust they will all be rejected and the bonds sold or exchanged by the treasurer as the necessities of the state require. The state can better afford to take chances on a decline in securities than to sell the bonds now at less than a fair price. Outside of states, first-class railroad and city bonds are in good demand. Georgia Pacifics went off a trifle the first of the week, but later recovered and now have an upward tendency. In stocks business is dull though steady, except in Central debentures and stocks, which have declined 1@2 points, and show a disposition to go Money is in good demand.

Stocks as Reported in the New York Stock

Exchange: NEW YORK, April 11.—The stock market contin ues subject chiefly to European war news. At the opening the morning prices were firm and in some cases % to % per cent higher than last evening. There was manifest disposition on the part of shorts in Grangers and Vanderblits to cover. There are rumors that a new bull combination has been formed in Grangers. The market continued strong but only fairly active until the announcement was made, near the middle of the day, that England would probably declare was before Moncompanied by a further advance in prices, which continued until about two o'clock. In the last hour the market was firmly held, but made no hour the market was firmly held, but made no further gains, and finally closed strong, near the best prices of the day. Total sales 246,000 shares. Over 73 per cent of this consisted of Northwestern, St. Paul, Lackawanna, Lake Shore, Facific Mall and Western Union. Compared with last evening, prices are generally ½ to 2 per cent higher than they closed last evening. Grangers show the greatest gains. Vanderbilts were the weakest active stocks late in the afternoon.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movemen.s in Grain and Produces. By telegraph to The Constitution.

mobileAGO, April 11-Great strength was again developed in the wheat market to-day, closing prices being at about the highest point scored dur-ing the week. There was a growing belief that war would result as a consequence of the strained relations existing between Russia and Eugland and renewed weakness in English consols was ac-cepted af a precursor of open hostilities. The gov-troment sgricultural report estimating a probable shortage of sixty million bushels in the yield considering the shortage in acreage and damage to the growing crop, in itself imparted a stronger tone to the market, while recent reports from the winter [wheat districts indicated an even more critical condition of affairs than has been shown in the official bulletins. At the opening sales were made at an advance of 11/201/20 over the closing figures of yesterday. The advance was met by liberal offerings, which checked any further rise at the opening, but later there was an dvance of 1%c, finally eased off %c and closed 21/c higher than yesterday. Read what an eminent physician says of Dr. Holt's Dyspeptic Elixir; Hatcher Station, Ga., October 18, 1883.—Dr. P. R. Holt, Eufaula, Ala., Dear Sir. I have been troubled with indigestion and nervous headache for the last afteen years. During that time I have suffered a great deal with periodical attacks of headache. Having exhauséed my own skill and tried prescriptions of a great many physicians, I was induced to try your Dyspeptic Elixir. You sent me a bottle about the middle of March last, and I am happy to inform you that I have not suffered from these periodical attacks since. My indigestion is almost if not entirely cured. I can eat any and everything without material injury. Thave been a practicing physician for thirty years, and have ever been opposed to proprietary medicine. You kindly furnished me with the formula for the Elixir, and on examination can testify to the medical properties and Therepeutical application, and I recommend all suffering from indigestion and nervous headache, or any diseases arising from a torpid liver to procure a bottle of your Dyspeptic Elixir, for it is almost a specific in this class of diseases. I recommend it to my patrons and prescribe it in my practice. I would have complied with your request, made when I saw you last, but thought it best to delay in order to be thoroughly convinced as to its curative properties.

GOSSIP OF THE GAY SIDE OF LIFE

Faragraphs and Fersonal Mention from Over the State-Several Important Society Events in Allanta-The Reception at Major D. N. Speci's-Marriage of Mr. Tyler,

The reception last Tuesday night at the resi dence of Major D. N. Speer, complimentary to Judge Emory Speer and Mrs. Speer was one of the most magnificent social events ever known in At-lanta. Major Speer's house is one of the most elegant n iGeorgia. The halls and parlors are spa-cious and the plazza extending nearly around the house is superb. The grounds are exceedingly handsome. The house was elaborately decorated with cut flowers and hot house plants. The first floor apartments are so constructed that by means of sliding panels they can be thrown into one of sliding panels they can be thrown into one, making one of the most elegant places imagina ble for a large reception. The dancing room was in the rear of the main part of the house, and the dancing was chirely cut off from the reception rooms. The yard was beautifully illuminated by Chinese lanterns. The house was beautifully chinese the elegant parlors with those departs. lighted and the elegant parlors, with their depora-tions of bronzes, paintings, flowers, etc., and the handsome company which numbered seven hunpessed in Atlanta during late years. The collect tion of bronzes attracted a great deal of attention Major Speer is especially fond of these beautiful works of art, and his collection is doubtless the handsomest in the south. Many pieces cost several hundred dollars each. These bronzes, dis tributed over the house in niches, on the mantles, and in other places added greatly to the beauty of the scene.

The conception of the entertainment was grace ful and appropriate. After two years residence in Atlanta Judge Speer, lately promoted to the judgeship of the United States court, is called to eside in Savannah. The reception was a fitting occasion for Atlanta society to show its apprecia-tion of Judge Speer and his charming wife. The guests were received by Major Speer and Mrs. Speer, and Judge and Mrs. Emory Speer and Miss Laura Speer. The occasion was one of the most delightful ever known in Atlanta. Among the prominent people present were the following: Senator and Mrs. Joseph E. Brown, Governor and Mrs. McDaniel, Mayor and Mrs. Hillyer, Judge and Mrs. Hammond, Judge and Mrs. Marshall J Clarke, Judge Eskine, Judge McCay, Hon. Henry W. Hilliard, Colonel Richard Peters and others Judge speer and Mrs. Speer left for Savannah

The gentlemen who accompanied Dr. N. O Harris, of Atlanta, to Raleigh, and attended at his wedding to Miss Lula Tucker, of that city last Wednesday night, have returned. The wed ding was one of the most notable events in the social history of Raleigh. The bridal party were entertained at a lunch at the residence of Major Tucker, the bride's father, on the evening before the wedding. After the ceremony there was a reception at Major Tucker's, where several hundred ladies and gentlemen, representing half a dozen states, were gathered. Thursday afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Harris left for Jacksonville. They will spend a week in Florida, and will then return to Atlanta. It is said that Dr. Harris will soon build a hahdsome residence on Peach-tree street. The Atlanta gentlemen are enthusiastic over the reception they had at the hands of the young men of Raleigh, who did all that could be imagined to make them enjoy their visit to the aristocratic capital of "the old north state."

The meeting of the Art club last Monday night at the Kimball house, was a delightful faffar. Quite a number of the honorary members were present. The attendance of the honorary mem-bers is a growing feature of the meetings. The programme for the evening commenced with a sonata for plane and violin, by Miss Irene Farrar and Professor Schultze, The delightfully clear con-ception of the character of the theme by Miss Far rar, and skillful playing of Professor Schultze, elicited warm applause. A recitation by Mr. Logan followed. Miss DeGive in a vocal solo, accompanied by Miss Wurm, earned very pleasant approval By request Miss Emma Powell gave a recitation Although suddenly called Miss Powell claimed much attention. Mr. Theus followed with an original paper on "Stragglers." Mrs. Spade, of Indianapolis, kindly consent to sing. Quite a number of strangers, guests of the hotel, were invited. They expressed themselves pleased and surprised at the variety of subjects presented. The club will meet again a week from to-morrow the most interesting it has ever had. It will be held at the residence of Colonel D. N. Speer, on Peachtree street. A programme rich with literary and artistic gems will be presented. The Art club started out with most flattering success, but it has kept on the up grade ever since, and is now the source of pride, as well as entertainment, to its Carcs are out announcing the approaching mar-riage of Mr. J. Oscar Chambers to Miss Manie Fendurant. The marriage will occur at the First-Presbyterian church next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. Mr. Chambers has been with Edwin Bates & Co. for five years, is well known in bus ness circles, and is popular with all who know him. His prospective bride is a most excellent young lady, with a sweet disposition and many harms of mind and heart.

Sunday morning last, the directors of Concor dia association met and decided to have the twentieth annual ball on Wednesday evening next. The ball will be a very brilliant affair and an elegant supper will be served. Concordia was organized just twenty years ago with thirteen members. The association now has more than a hundred members and is in flourishing condi-tion, and edding much to the social enjoyments of its members. The ball will be much enjoyed. ganizations in Atlanta. This present manage ment is active and aspires to make the association an object of pride to its members. The rooms were beautifully improved last fall, are completely equipped for all kinds of social and dramatic entertainments and are frequently called into requisition by other societies and by

Last Sunday night a pleasant reception occurred at the residence of Mrs. Martin Menko, on Peters street. The occasion was the celebration of the engagement of Mr. Julius Menko to Miss Sulzhacher, of New York. A pleasant company as apent. sembled and a most delightful evening was spent.
Toasts were drank and the prospective groom was the recipient of many congratulations. The music was furnished by four of Mr. Menko's friends, namely: Mr. Charles Cohen, Mr. Harry Hanlein, Mr. Fred Wedemeyer and Professor

On Wednesday evening last Mr. Charles B. Tyler and Miss Mary A. Miller were married at St. Luke's cathedral, Right Reverend John W. Beckwith performing the ceremony. The cathedral was beautifully decorated and presented a decidedly bandsome appearance. At 8 o'clock the bride entered, preceded by the attendants and accompanied by the first brides-maid Miss Lida Drane, of Savannah. The attendants were as fol-lows: Miss Lida Drane and Mr. Alex. W. Smith, Miss Julia Culpepper and Mr. G. O. Ellis, Miss Annie Reid and Mr. T. A. Hammond, Miss Annie Rawson and Mr. Eugene Bruckner, Miss Clifford Putnam and Mr. C. S. Northen, Miss Minnie Findley and Mr. H. G. Northen, Jr., Miss Helen Hill and Mr. C. W. Crankshaw.

Hill and Mr. C. W. Crankshaw.

When the bridal party reached the altar Mr. Tyler, who has been waiting in the vestry in the party approached under escort of the best man, Mr. Alexander W-Smith. Judge Sam Hall, uncle of the brids, join ed the party, and gave the charming bride into the keeping of the happy groom. In a deeply impressive manner, Bishop Beckwith pronounced the ceremony, and the bridal party and the large seemblage of friends withdrew. After the cere mony, the bridal party repaired to the residence of Judge Hall, where a reception was held. Mr. Tyler is a most excellent gentleman, who has friends innumerable. His bride is one of the love-liest ladies in Atlanta. The union is a happy one in every way.

Mr. Tyler-adopted a sensible plan in arranging for his wedding. His plan was so novel and commendable that it deserves to be followed. Instead of preparing for a bridal trip he secured a beautiful cottage on Merritt's avenue. He went to work, laid off his garden, planted it with vegetables for the summer, and laid off the front yard for his bride's flowers; planted it in exquisite taste, selected a fine cow, employed a good cook, and house servants, and furnished the house to the smallest detail. Then in order to be certain that everything would be running right by the time his bride would come to take possession, he went to housekeeping himself about ten days before the wedding. His friends, appreciating the sensible view he had taken of the matter, instead of giving bridal presents of the usual sort, supplemented his excellent taste in furnishing his house by gifts that will be useful as well as ornamental. No bride even went to a home in which more taste and delicacy had been used in making it ready for her. It was warm

To-morrow night the monthly meeting of the Capital City club will be held. It will be the second anniversary of the institution. Just two years ago a meeting of about twenty young men of this city was held at the Kimball house, and the club was determined upon. The most enthusiastic friend it had then did not hope that in two years it would become what it is to-day. It is already one of the most noted clubs in the south, and its reputation is deserved. It has a membership of one hundred and seventy, a superb home of its own, and an excellent financial status The constitution and by laws have guaranteed the morale of the club, and have received the sincere support of the membership. It is not yet certain whether or not the club will give any full dress receptions during the summer. This is one of the uestions that will be considered to morrow night. At any rate, the informal receptions for ladies every Wednesday afternoon will be con tinued. The club house is open for Jadies every Wednesday from 12 to 6 o'clock. Ladies of the families of members and their lady friends and the lady friends of the members are invited to

Yesterday morning a meeting of the ladies in terested in the charity ball was held at the hall of the young men's library to settle up the accounts of the ball. A few receipts and a few liabilities are still to be counted, but it is certain that there will be clear between $1,000 and $1,200. At the meeting yesterday it was resolved that the charity ball be made a permanent annual event in Atlanta. The first Thursday night after Lent was chosen as the time for it, and the ladies are already talking of next year's ball. They are gratified at the success of their first effort but they regard this as only a beginning of what they mean to accomplish. Now that the ball is over the la dies are giving their entire attention to the Wo man's exchange, which is now being con ducted under the auspices of the Industrial union

The two german clubs of Atlanta intend to con duct a series of delightful entertainments during the summer. The clubs are in no sense rival in stitutions, as one is composed entirely of gentlemen and the other of ladies. Both are well managed and each has contributed its full share to the social pleasure of its members and friends.

The Gentleman's Nine O'clock German club will have a meeting in a few days to lay out a programme for the summer. Regular monthly and bi-monthly germans will probably be determined upon. The annual picnic of the Nine O'clock club will occur some time in May. Sev eral delightful trips are being discussed among the members. The rules of the club strictly ex clude all resident gentlemen who are not mem-bers, and all its entertainments have a select and distinctive character. The ladies' german club will also play a large part in the social life of Atlanta during the summer. The club is patronized and chaperoned by a number of married ladies in the city, while its active spirits are about a score

The calico hop at Centennial hall on last Mon day evening, given by the German Ladies Benevplent society, was a decided success in point o attendance and amount of money realized by the society. The music for the occasion was furnished by Wurm's orchestra, and the dancing was enjoyments were served. The hop was greatly enjoyed

The soirce at Concordia hall, given by Professor H. Hanlien, Friday evening, was a most pleasant entertainment, and was heartily enjoyed by all. The company in attendance was larger than usual, and the music furnished by Professor Cohen's orchestra was enchanting, and the merry dancers lingered until a late hour keeping time to its inspiring strains. Among those present from abroad was Miss Baum, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. George S. May, recently of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Newman, of Philadelphia;

Miss Carlsurber, of Rome, and many others.

For ladies suits this season, tan color is used more than any other, and shoulder dolmans are made of the same goods as the dresses. For trimming these delmans, chenille fringe is considered most appropriate. A great many brocaded grenadine dolmans in colors and black are worn. As it is the style to wear dresses very plain, very handsome laces and passementeries are generally used for trimming them.

The changable silks and surahs are all in colors, and when jet trimming or lace are not used they are trimmed with handsome brocade fronts.

Augusta,

The Atlanta ball tossers may lookout for a grand stand crowded with good looks on Wednesday, for Augusta girls dote on the sports of the diamond, and rush eagerly and every day to the ball ground. There is nothing mean about Augusta girls or the boys either, for that matter, and they are just as glad to applaud a good play from Atlanta as from the home nine. When an Augusta girl applauds the grand stand shakes and the air is electric. Did you ever hear an Augusta girl applauds the grand stand, but is luxuriating in low-priced shows. The feshion of the town is airayed nightly in the theater, and the awells of the village are squancering wealth taking the girls to fifteen-cent shows. And the company is by no means had, either—far better, in fact, than half the high-priced stars, and "sfinding room only" is the sign displayed rightly in front of the theatre.

Augusta is, in fact, on a regular Easter week spread and the spring opening is immense. Entertainments have crowded the social schedule every night. The young folk, the high-school girl and the academy cadet variety, opened the ball on Monday night with a pretty german at Captain Butler's in Bay street, while the Hayne literary circle of weold folk met and listened to the quaint, humorous originalities of an (assy by Cariton Hillyer on "Theart of all articles and metal and metal to the quaint, humorous originalities of an (assy by Cariton Hillyer on "Theart of all articles and metal to the quaint, humorous originalities of an (assy by Cariton Hillyer on "Theart of all articles who know him not will never be able even to imagine what they have missed

y not living in Augusta and belonging to the syne circle. The Evening News printed this unmorous paper of Mr. Hillyer's in its Eridar's saue. The Havne Circle is getting to be quite an nestitution, but Colonel Avery says is must needs said music and art features like the Art club of the great capitol city. However, we will grow.

On Tuceday it was a wedding, and a pretty marriage it was too, although very quiet. Miss Emmie Heard, a famous Augusts beauty, and sister of Mrs. James C. C. Black, was married to gallant and good locking Tom Heard, of Opelika, Alabama, and off they went on the fast train immediately after Rev. Doctor Burrowshad pronounced them man and wife. The tail bride did not change her name in marriage, but unfortunately for Augusta, she does change her place of residence. Both are favorites, and we hope to see them early and often on Greene street and on the sloping hillsdee about the "Three Oaks."

Oaks."
On Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. Boykin Wright were complimented with a pleasant evening tea by Mr. James P. Verdery, who was best man at the recent marriage of this bandsome and favorite couple. Mr. and Mrs. Wright are being toasted by all their friends, and Mrs. Wright; who was a great belle in Virginia, is a most appreciated acquisition to Augusta society. Besides the ladies of Mr. Verdery's pretty home on the bill, there were present at this affair Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Miss Maude Stovall, Messirs. Wallace Delph, H. P. Moore and T. R. Gibson.

The most brilliant social event of the week was a german on Friday night, given by Mrs. H. T. Massengale and her accomplished daughters, Miss Carrie and Julia Carter at their Broad street home. The belies and swells of the city were in attendance, and the dizzy, whirling figures were led by Mr. Frank Butt, a dashing young gentleman of happy, humorous moods and most impressive shape. Frank is very popular with everybody, and the girls call him adarling apollo. The entertainment was characteristic of all the affairs over which the charming ladies of the house presided, and two more fascinating young ladies than the Misses Carter would be difficult to find.

The social events of the week were closed with a Saturday night concert and literary treat in the Telfair building, the chief feature of which was the infinitable recitation of Judge H. D. D. Twiggs, the finest orator and reader in the state.
